Listen to her story and you'll understand ours.

Leaving a positive impression on kids is nothing new for Dr. Jodi, who has been with Small Smiles since 2005. And like her dental peers, making kids feel comfortable and starting them on a lifetime of good dental health is a common mission.

"I'd never really considered working with children, but I know this will be my career. There's just a great sense of satisfaction in helping kids like Julian and Jaydon who need access to quality dental care." After all, the five-year-old twins set up their own imaginary dentist office at home after their first visit with Dr. Jodi.

The work environment at Small Smiles is another positive for Dr. Jodi. "I love working here. Our entire organization is committed to the highest ethical standards and to always doing things the right way, especially as it refers to providing quality care to our patients. Our mission has always been about serving the oral health needs of underserved kids she says. "The entire staff is very professional, but we have fun because we want the kids to have fun. We want them to have the best experience possible."
